Is the Internet making us stupid

Pros

The speed and ubiquity of the Internet is different than previous technologies and is making our brains worse

- Many studies have found that reading digital text leads to less information learned instead of printed text.
- Because the internet touches most of our daily task, it's changing the way we read information to process the fast ways of the internet .

IQ score are falling with the rise of technology

- with the increase of the internet, all it takes to lose 10 IQ points is to look at a web site.
- the lose of 10 IQ points is equal to missing a night's sleep

“The lose of 10 IQ points equal to missing a night's sleep is double the effect of smoking“

Cons

Most new technology, included the internet have been feared, and those fears were unnoticed

- The telephone was feared to make a race of left eared people(people who hear better with their left ear)who would become a blob of jelly.
- TV was going to blow up radio, conversation, and family fun. Calculators was going to destroy kids math grades. These are what people feared with new technology now look what it has become.

the internet gives people more access to information

- Between 21 and 42 billion don't have access to information. The internet can help with this giving people a reliable information that they can access at home
- older people use the internet to help with daily task. This is good if they don't have family or friends near by

“All new technology i,the internet includes,have been feared”

in conclusion I think that every minute were dropping 3 IQ points just by looking at a screen. This is what they mean when they say is the internet making us stupid
